

Community Health Fair

AALO NEWS

August 22, 2015

Your health matters. AALO and El Proyecto del Barrio are collaborating to bring a series of community health fairs to locations throughout the San Fernando Valley.

African Americans are at greater risk when it comes to some illnesses including high blood pressure, stroke, and diabetes.

AALO President, Bob Winn, "It is my hope that by having the African American Leadership reaching out to our community to attend these health fairs, people will be able to find out if they are at risk and get the help they need. I am delighted to have this great collaboration with El Proyecto to provide the doctors and medical staff for these events. I am encouraging residents to take advantage of this opportunity."

Digoberto Lopez welcomes community members to the health fair held at Reseda Church. AALO President Bob Winn and Executive Director Jessica Sullivan join him for a photo opportunity.

Bob greets SFV NAACP Vice President, Theo Gales.

Our thanks to El Proyecto medical team including Sandra Caceres, MD, Olga Oellana and Rosa Sanchez who were there to serve community members.

AALO and El Proyecto del Barrio partner to bring free medical checkups to the community.

The UCLA Early Head Start Program (located in Arleta) is a federally funded program that serves children from birth to three years of age as well as pregnant women. The program provides services to support optimal child health and development for young children and disadvantaged families living in the northeast San Fernando Valley. BIH Advisory Board member, Dr. Tumaini Coker, MD, MBA was recently named Executive Director of the program. Thanks to Head Start staff members Fabiola Martinez and Angelica Vazquez for joining us at the health fair. BIH Program Manager Marlene Rowlett and BIH Advisory Board Chairman and AALO President Bob Winn stopped by to say hello and share information about BIH and AALO.

Bob Winn serves as the Advisory Board Chairman for The Black Infant Health program and BIH staff members were there to share information about the program with community members.

BIH staff Roxanne Wilson greets Board members Alayna Tillman and Jessica Sullivan.
